CYRUS B. JONES, Agent.

SCHOOL REPORT.

There have been seven different schools in the District the past year. Each school two terms of ten weeks each, and taught by the same teachers, also a term of ten weeks of winter school at the Centre District taught by Prof. F. E. Stinson a graduate of a college in Iowa.

It has been the aim of the Board to secure able and efficient teachers; most of them have had much experience and all competent preparation for the duties assigned them.

The present system of delivering text books and supplies causes considerable annoyance, both to teachers and scholars by not having proper supplies on hand at the commencement of the terms, and also quite an item of expense to visit each district at the commencement of the term and deliver the books, and gather them up at its close. We would recommend each school be supplied with a book case where the books and supplies can be safely kept between terms.

Owing to the withdrawal of money from our savings banks the literary fund fell about seventy dollars short of what we have usually had and what we expected. In order to have our schools compare in length with the adjoining towns, and to keep them up at a respectable standard it will be necessary to make larger appropriations.

It is not true economy to pursue a penurious policy in regard to our schools. There are no efforts that yield so large returns in the future as the education of the young.
